June - August 2013

I had the opportunity to spend my summer in 2013 as a Research Intern studying – “Competitive Analysis of HDFC Bank’s Mobile Banking offering and preparing a strategy”

Mobile telephony in India has a huge potential with 873.4mn mobile connections as on 30.06.2013 in the country, of which about 350mn are in rural areas. The number of subscribers who access Internet by wireless phones has grown to about 143mn. With sizeable proportion of households (41.3%) not having bank accounts, and large unbanked sections of population residing in the villages, mobile banking offers a huge opportunity for banking industry to leverage upon the mobile density in the country.

HDFC Bank's MobileBanking has been the most convenient and easy way to stay connected to bank always. One can do over 75 plus transactions on one’s smart phone through MobileBanking App or mobile browser. What's more MobileBanking App is secure as no information is stored on your mobile device or SIM card.

During this research I had the opportunity to look at competitive strategies of various banks in India competing to offer easy and convenient access to their customers so as to continue their market dominance in acquiring and retaining their customers.

My recommended potential improvisations, at that time, being inclusion of loans related information, introduction of OTP Device, and inclusion of cheque deposit feature.
